

David Yrigoyen is a Native Tucsonan. Graduating from Tucson High in 2000 and attending The University of Arizona shortly after, David found himself working at UMC Hospital, where he was exposed to the healthcare industry for the first time. Having played sports for most of his life, along with an injury at work, he developed severe chronic pain, for which no treatment at the hospital, or medical doctor could give relief for. That's when David discovered Alternative/Holistic Medicine and the power of Cannabis. In 2012 he co-founded Natural Healing Care Center, where he currently consults and helps operate. David is focused on serving the community through education on Cannabis and Alternative Healthcare for treatment of chronic pain and other ailments.
